Reaching students in the name of Jesus to win them to Christ, build them in their relationship and community, and send them into the world as His laborers.

I met Chris at one of our weekly worship meetings. He was an outgoing freshman and we built a friendship quickly. Later on that semester he called me and asked to crash on my couch. So that night Chris came over and fell asleep in our living room. The next morning I woke up and went out to do my quiet time and read my Bible, and Chris asked if he could join me.

We proceeded to talk about the Bible and God. Then when I asked him a question about grace and faith, he looked at me and said, “Honestly Jacob I have no idea what those terms mean.” And right there I realized I had made an assumption about Chris; because he was in a Bible study and had done some youth group before college, I had just assumed he knew about Christianity and having relationship with Christ. It was clear no one had ever talked to him about this. So I asked him if he wanted to receive Christ. He said yes, and we prayed a simple prayer, but when we were done, he had the biggest smile from ear to ear.

Three weeks later he texted me and said, “I can’t stop smiling; thank you so much for introducing me to Jesus Christ.” I could only sit and think, no thank God for letting me be a part of what He is doing in your life.

Students from the Christmas Conference provide food for those in need.
