

InterVarsity Christian Fellowship at OSU

Encouraging Christian professors to be a redeeming influence on the people, ideas and structures in the university.

Professor G. became involved with a faculty group while he was an assistant professor nearly 20 years ago. He is now nearing the end of his career at Ohio State as an Entomologist and wants to serve the Lord in the mission field of the university. He is seeking the Lord on how he should invest his retirement years in ministry. He has led a small group discussion with other faculty (from UALC) over the years and is part of our Fellowship of Christian Faculty and Staff steering committee. He has spoken up clearly about his faith to colleagues and in classes where appropriate. He has also testified before the State Board of Education with his expertise in science with regard to the Ohio Science Curriculum Standards.

Another professor who went on an overseas mission trip to speak in universities in St. Petersburg, Russia, continues to be involved in helping plan and execute plans for campus ministry at Ohio State. He has helped launch two small groups on campus and is praying for many of the faculty and staff who are involved in the monthly luncheons at Ohio State.

- Five new faculty communities to spring up on Midwest campuses in the next two years.
- InterVarsity staff to take initiative to meet and work with more faculty on their campuses.
